

I will stand for Parliament at the next general election to use the free mailing to raise awareness of the unfairness of saddling young people with massive debt in order to complete higher education but only if 50 other people will pledge a tenner towards the £500 deposit.

More details: Currently, in order to receive higher education (and thanks to NuLabour) young people are saddled with masses of debt. Candidates for Parliament receive for their £500 deposit a free mailing to every house in the constituency. I am prepared to stand at the next general election campaigning on this issue in the mailing if 50 people also sick of tuition fees will each pledge a tenner towards paying the deposit to stand.
